Dads' Day

By E. F. Gaines

Secretary W. S. C. Dads' Day Association

The Eleventh Annual Dads' Day sponsored by the student body of the State College of Washington has grown to be a tradition. The Dads come to the campus primarily to see their sons and daughters. They meet in a somewhat different way than they have ever met before. They are the guests of their sons and daughters, and visiting them in their new homes is quite an experience. They see how they live, who their friends are, what they study, and where they eat. Probably their clothes are somewhat different than they were at home. They hear the band play, see the buildings, meet some of the faculty, their teachers, and, incidentally, see a football game. Many of the Dads have been Dads for a long period of time.

I became a member of the Dads' Day Association in 1930 when Ed, Jr. entered Washington State as a freshman, and a good many of the Dads who were there are still coming back to see their younger children in college. The program worked up by a special committee of students keeps the Dads busy from the time they arrive until they leave for home again. I believe it would be fine for the sons and daughters, if all the Dads could come to the campus and see the changes which have occurred in recent years.

The school is going into its fifty-first year, and there are a few scattering Granddads who may look forward to the future when there will be a Granddads' Day. I suggest that the Granddads come back for golf tournaments, as their blood pressure may not stand the arduous football game. I am looking forward to the time when I can come back and see my four grandsons in college. That will be a great day for a good many others who might come back in a similar capacity.

This is the first Dads' Day to be headed by a woman student. Betty Saling, is chairman of the Dads' Day Committee this year. Betty came to my office the other day to get the low-down on what other Dads' Days were like. Of course, she wants the Eleventh Annual Dads' Day to be somewhat different and it's up to us Dads to see that it is.

DUCKS ON THE POND

By Elton Troth

Once again from the Willamette Valley comes the ominous quack of the Oregon Duck, invading the lair of the "hocus-pocus" Cougar of Washington State. Today the "Oliver Twist" coached eleven clashes with Coach O. E. Hollingbery's squad for the 19th time since the inter-state series began in 1901. You can bet your last tax token that the determination, plainly etched on the faces of those men who sport the Green and Yellow of Oregon, is indicative of a hoped-for "winning" takeoff after being grounded in three consecutive Pacific Coast conference battles.

Last Saturday at Los Angeles, the gallant Oregonians gave Southern California considerable trouble, but finally wilted from the terrific heat wave and the attack of the aerial artists of Troy, 13 to 0. Oregon, however, has been fortunate in maintaining a three-year jinx over Washington State, the last Cougar victory coming in 1936 with a 3 to 0 decision. Despite the jinx, Washington State is gunning for Duck meat, not forgetting the fact that the Webfoots plastered a 38 to 0 defeat on the Cougars at Eugene last year. Oregon, nevertheless, is indeed hopeful that she may square the long series with the "Thrown-caution-to-the-wind" gridders of the Palouse hills today. Records show that, along with three dead-locked contests, Washington State leads in victories, eight to seven.

On Rogers Field turf today, fans will get a glimpse of many new faces and new personalities in the first string Oregon squad.

With only two regulars back from his 1939 starting lineup Coach Tex Oliver, in his third year at the Eugene institution, has had to rebuild from a promising but inexperienced squad of sophomores and holdover reserves. However, an extremely mobile unit has been built, and is definitely capable of performing the colorful "Oliver Twist" brand of football, a highly effective system generated solely by Tex Oliver.

Jim Stuart, giant red-head who was a unanimous choice for an All-Coast tackle berth last fall, and Hymie Harris, left end, form the nucleus of the Webfoots' forward wall. Stuart, again this season one of the West's outstanding linemen, is being boosted for All-American ranking by many Northwest grid fans. Other linemen expecting to face Hollingbery's contingent at kick-off time are: Ray Segale, one-year letterman and a reserve last fall at left guard; Erling Jacobsen, two-year letterman at center; Val Culwell, chunky 196-pound sophomore at the right guard post; Dick Ashcom, 208 pound sophomore who came to Oregon after three years in the Navy, at right tackle, and Bill Regner, 194-pound one-year letterman at the right flank position.

Oliver's team possesses a string of fleet, strong-armed backs, with ground-eating action being promised by Chet Haliski, Buck Berry, Izzy Isberk, and Marshall "Bull" Stenstrom. Haliski, burly quarterback hailing from Portland, is a rugged, pile-driving blocker who prefers to block and head the interference rather than pack the ball. Buck Berry, the stocky triple threater at the left halfback spot, is ably filling the shoes of Jay Graybeal. Berry sets the pace for the Webfoot offense with his passing, running and kicking ability, and is one of the most versatile athletes on the Oregon campus.

Izzy Isberg, at right half, is a fine all-around performer and an exceptionally talented passer and kicker. Incidentally, he is the only married man on the squad. Bull Stenstrom, whose home town is Seattle, will be counted on for heavy duty against Washington State. Stenstrom's terrific line smashing tactics have been a feature of Oregon's offensive play. His defensive work against passes has been particularly commendable. Stenstrom runs with a peculiar hopping stride which makes it tough for opposing tacklers. Add Roy Ell, Frank Boyd, Curtis (Curly) Mecham, Roy (Tippy) Dyer, "Butch" Nelson, Tommy Roblin, and you have a backfield that no opposition should underestimate.

Head Coach Tex Oliver, popular with Oregonians as evidenced by a new contract to take effect at the close of the current campaign, is a genial, soft-spoken Texan. He came to Oregon in the spring of 1938, and, after two seasons as head coach of the Webfoots, has gained great respect in Pacific Coast conference circles for his coaching ability. In 1939 Oliver piloted the Webfoots back into the first division of the coast conference standings for the first time in six years.

Oliver came to Oregon from the University of Arizona, where his teams won 32 and lost only 11 games in the five-year period running through 1933 and 1937. Prior to his Arizona post, Oliver coached at San Diego and Santa Anna high schools in California. In both cities his teams were outstanding. Oliver's own football career began at West Point, following service overseas in World War I. After leaving West Point, Oliver attended both Stanford and Southern California.

Vaughn Corley, in his second year as line coach at Oregon, came to Eugene from New Mexico State, where he was assistant coach for six years until 1938. Corley was a member of the first freshman class at Texas Tech in 1925 and played four years of football and track. Following his graduation in 1929, he went as mentor to Las Cruces (New Mexico) high school. His second year at Las Cruces resulted in a state championship.

Mike Mikulak, former All-American fullback at Oregon and later an All-American professional with the Chicago Cardinals, is now in his fourth season as Oregon's backfield coach. Mikulak played at Oregon from 1930 to 1933 and turned coach in 1937 after three years of professional play.

Veteran of the Oregon coaching staff is "Honest John" Warren, portly freshmen mentor. Warren also is a former Oregon star, playing tackle from 1926 to 1928. After his graduation he went to Astoria (Oregon) high school, where he enjoyed brilliant success in all sports. Since 1936 he has coached freshman football, basketball and baseball.
